Aqualand launches Lindfield Village

Jonathan O'Dea MP officiated the mixed-use development's completion

Sydney (29 May 2018): Parliamentary Secretary to the Premier and Treasurer and NSW Member for Davidson, Jonathan O'Dea MP, helped celebrate the community launch of Aqualand Property's Lindfield Village, on Saturday 26 May.

Located within metres of the Lindfield train station, the mixed-use development is now home to 140 new households who benefit from the area's latest retailers including a new concept IGA, BWS, Flight Centre, Stone Real Estate, Goodfields Eatery, Indôchine bakery and The Modern Man barber.

The launch saw hundreds of locals from surrounding communities and neighbourhoods come together to enjoy the new precinct, which hosted a free brunch, live music, face painting and ribbon cutting ceremony.

John Carfi, Aqualand Properties CEO, commented, "Lindfield Village is our first completed development and we are very proud of the final product. We are proud to add to Lindfield's vibrant community, not only with new households, but a new retail provision.

"Local commuters can benefit with a coffee and croissant on their way to work or pop by enroute home to collect dinner, a bottle of wine or other necessities. I feel confident we have added a new legacy to the community which will be enjoyed for many years to come."

Jonathan O'Dea MP, Member for Davidson, commented, "The Lindfield Village development is a valuable community resource. It provides new housing conveniently located near public transport, along with much-anticipated retail offerings that will enhance lifestyle quality for many local residents."

Retailers IGA, BWS and Flight Centre are currently open.

Stone Real Estate, Goodfields Eatery, Indôchine bakery and The Modern Man barber are due to open shortly.
